Organising the start of your studies

International students who need visas should apply for them immediately upon acceptance to the university at the German embassy in their home countries, as the process can be lengthy.

Ten weeks before classes begin:

As soon as you receive your letter of acceptance, start looking for housing in Weimar (page 23).

»Studierendenwerk Thüringen« offers inexpensive rooms in its housing facilities. Classified ads in the local press or on the web, student bulletins hanging on message boards in classroom buildings or the dining hall, as well as the online message boards on the university website can also be helpful in your search.

Two weeks before classes begin:

Have a look at your enrolment documents and find out where in Weimar your orientation courses will take place at the beginning of the semester.

Participate in the International Welcome.Lounge where staff and student tutors assist you in preparing your documents for enrolment and residence permit and give useful advices for a smooth and enjoyable start of your life in Weimar.

The dates and schedule for the »Studieneinführungswoche« can be found on the web, and once you arrive you'll get other insider tips.

A week before classes begin:

»Studieneinführungswoche« (Student Orientation Week) starts in the beginning of October.

This is THE event prior to the start of the academic year in Weimar and is carried out with the help of student tutors. The tutors accompany you throughout the entire week and attend to all your needs to ensure a successful start to your academic career (applying for your university login, receiving your »thoska« student identification card, etc.). They also create an individual schedule for you and show you all of the key places related to student life in Weimar.

Studying in Weimar

If you are interested in the history of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, take part in our Bauhaus Walk offered by students from every faculty several times a week.

With its population of 65,000 residents, Weimar is small enough for laid-back study, and yet large enough to offer plenty of diversions. There are fascinating opportunities for art and culture aficionados, lovers of nightlife, athletes, and foodies – opportunities comparable to those you'd expect from a big city. The greatest of these, of course are the cultural opportunities – not only because the titles of »European Capital of Culture« (1999) and »University Town« (since 2004) come with certain obligations in this regard, but also through the effect of key personalities who have left their mark on Weimar in Germany.

Weimar occupies a relatively central location in Germany, and can be reached by train, bus or car (via Autobahn A9 and A4) from nearby cities with international airports – such as Frankfurt, Berlin, and Leipzig – in three hours or less.

Being a student in Weimar means studying at a university characterised by its easy accessibility, central location, amazing student-instructor ratios and great facilities. Currently, some 4,000 people from Germany and around the world study at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar's four faculties: Faculty of Architecture and Urbanism, Faculty of Civil Engineering, Faculty of Art and Design and Faculty of Media.

Nearly all of the academic buildings, as well as the University Library, Student Services, the computer pool, and the dining hall are concentrated on a campus that is easy to navigate and borders both the city centre and the Park on the Ilm.

To experience the spirit of Weimar, pay a visit to the many museums and the locations where personalities such as Goethe, Schiller, Liszt, Nietzsche, Gropius, Itten and Kandinsky created their works.

The spirit of history is not limited to the museums and exhibits; you can feel it throughout the city. Even in the green spaces – the Park on the Ilm, the nearby Park Tierfurt, the historic cemetery and the Schlosspark Belvedere – it is only a matter of time before you encounter the great names of those who have resided here. The numerous parks are perfectly suited to strolling, relaxation, picnicking and leisure activities.

On the Ettersberg, some 10 km from the centre of Weimar, is the Buchenwald Memorial. The permanent exhibit and paths leading around the expansive terrain explain the history of the former concentration camp of Buchenwald, the Soviet internment camp, and the memorial itself.

If you want a short break after a day of studying, Weimar offers four movie theatres; The »LichtHaus Kino« on Kirschberg and the communal cinema »mon ami« on Goetheplatz usually run films that are out of the mainstream and put on selected theme-based events, whereas the »Cinestar« in Schützengasse and the »3D-Kino im Atrium« show the proven mix new releases and blockbusters.

Every hour, bus line 6 runs from the Goetheplatz bus stop to the Buchenwald Memorial. At the visitors' centre or on the memorial's website, you can find out more about scheduled tours.

Memorial > Buchenwald >
Visitors' service >

Shopping fans can also get their money's worth in Weimar. In addition to the »Atrium« in Friedensstraße, there is an increasing number of shops downtown where graduates of the University present their designs. There is also plenty to be found outside of Weimar—with a semester ticket for regional trains, you can easily get to the nearby state capital of Erfurt, or the city of Jena.

Every year, events such as the backup_festival, Bauhaus Summer School, the Yiddish Summer, the »Kunstfest« (Art Festival), the Goethe Wine Festival, and the biggest festival in Thuringia, the »Zwiebelmarkt«, ensure that there is never a dull moment in the summer.

The programme of the »Deutsches Nationaltheater Weimar« (DNT), ranging from modern dance to opera, concert performances, and classical plays is considered unique in all of Germany. As a student, you will receive discount admission prices at all of the venues of the DNT, the numerous small performance spaces and cabarets, and nearly all of the cultural facilities in Weimar and the surrounding area.

The fastest way to find out about currently scheduled events is the event calendar on the city of Weimar website.

Veranstaltungs-kalender >

Find the current theatre programme on the DNT of Weimar website weimar.de](http://nationaltheater-weimar.de)

Friends of contemporary art can also enjoy the »Neues Museum«, »C.Keller« and the »ACC Galerie«.

Local radio and television stations provide information on exhibits, readings, and other events.

Grocery shopping can be done close to the University in the downstairs supermarket in the Goethekaufhaus on Theaterplatz or at the Nahkauf in Steubenstraße. If you want something a bit more conscientious and fresh, you can visit the farmer's market on the Marktplatz from Monday through Saturday or stop by Rosmarin, an organic market on Herderplatz. There are also two organic supermarkets (on Eduard-Rosenthal-Straße and Damaschkestraße) outside of the city centre. Large chain supermarkets can be found in the suburbs outside of Weimar.

If you prefer to leave the cooking to someone else, you cannot go wrong in one of numerous restaurants serving domestic and international cuisine. In addition to gourmet cuisine, there is a huge selection of cafés, bars, and pubs, as well as a bratwurst stand on nearly every corner.

Clemens Beier, a graduate of the Faculty of Media, offers a unique impression of a Weimar's student retail businesses in his film »Tante Emma in Weimar«.

And it can all be found in a city centre where nothing is more than 10 minutes' walk away.

The fold-out map on the inside back cover shows the bus stops of line 1 in the city centre.

On those occasions when you have to go a longer distance, or simply do not have time to walk, you can reach anything in Weimar by bike or bus. Bus line 1 (direction Ehringsdorf) will take you from the railway station directly to the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar bus stop in less than 10 minutes.

Arrival and Residency

You are not permitted to study or work in Germany with a tourist visa. More information available auswaertiges-amt.de or daad.de

Get more information on residency law at:

Entry requirements

Before travelling to Germany, international students should find out about entry requirements for Germany at the German embassy in their home country. The regulations differ widely from country to country. Find out from the »Auswärtiges Amt der Bundesrepublik Deutschland« or the »Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst« (DAAD) whether you need a visa and, if so, what type.

Spouses of students wishing to travel to Germany must demonstrate knowledge of the German language. Only certain German courses are recognised for entry to Germany. Look into this ahead of time at the German Embassy in your home country. Children under 16 years of age are generally allowed to enter the country with their parents.

Residency in Germany

All students are required to register their place of residence at the residential registration office (Einwohnermeldeamt). Simply contact Weimar's municipal office (Bürgerbüro) during opening hours. Appointments are not necessary.

Bürgerbüro der Stadt Weimar
Schwanseestraße 17, 99423 Weimar

Office hours:

Monday 7 a.m.–1 p.m., Tuesday
8 a.m.–6 p.m., Wednesday 8 a.m.–1 p.m.,
Thursday 8 a.m.–3 p.m. and Friday 8 a.m.–1 p.m.,
Each 1st Saturday of the month 9 a.m.–12 a.m.

For non-EU citizens, it is necessary to apply for a residency permit at the foreigners office. The procedure is complex and time-consuming. You should therefore schedule an appointment as soon as possible following your arrival and bring the following with you:

- > a valid passport
- > a biometric passport photo
- > a certificate of matriculation stamped by the international office (page 40)

The International Office provides international students with checklists containing all of the important information they need to begin their studies.

Financial Aid

International students who are not from the European Union (EU) need a proof of financial means of 8,000 Euro per year.

Refugees are entitled to apply for the German Student Aid (BAföG) at the »Studierendenwerk Thüringen«.

www.stw-thueringen.de

A reliable source of financing for subsistence is an important component of a successful academic career. The average monthly expenses for students in Germany amount to 819 Euro. This figure comes from a »Deutsches Studierendenwerk« study (2016) and takes into account expenses for rent, food, transportation, leisure activities, insurance, medical costs, clothing, telephone, internet, and learning aids. Living costs in Weimar, at some 712 Euro per month, are below this average.

If you are applying for a residency permit as an international student in Weimar, you must provide proof of finance (scholarship, savings account, declaration of parental support). Financing studies according to the Federal Vocational Training Assistance Act (BAföG) is only granted with a written application and at the earliest from your first month of study.

Part-time jobs for students

International students, who are not citizens from the European Union (EU), are only permitted to work in Germany with a work permit. The work permit allows you to work 120 full days (1 day = 8 hours), which can be spread out over 240 half-days (1/2 day = 4 hours). This allows you to work during semester breaks (page 47).

You should also keep in mind that if you earn more than 450 Euro a month, you will be subject to higher health insurance premiums.

You should also keep in mind that a job not related to your field of study can have a significant effect on the duration of your studies and cost additional time and energy. It is advisable to find a part-time job in your field, which offers practical experience for you and your subsequent transition to a career.

It is possible to be an »Wissenschaftliche Hilfskraft« (academic assistant) at the university, working a maximum of 86 hours/month, which is not deducted from the 120 days allowed on a student work permit.

Most of the jobs for students in Weimar require working knowledge of the German language.

Room and Board

In a shared flat, there is usually a so-called »principal tenant« who is responsible for collecting the rent. The principal tenant then pays the total rent to the landlord.

Rental accommodations are the norm in Germany. Rent is paid by bank transfer into the account of the landlord once a month, usually at the beginning of the month. The termination of a flat or a room is always possible only within a certain deadline (usually three months in advance). For financial reasons, many students share a rental with other students in a so-called shared flat (in German, »Wohngemeinschaft«, or simply WG). Each tenant has a private room and shares the kitchen and lavatory with the other tenants.

The residential facilities operated by »Studierendenwerk Thüringen« near the city centre are shown on the fold-out map following (page 78).

You can find list of all of the housing facilities, rental prices for the Residential facilities of »Studierendenwerk Thüringen«

»Studierendenwerk Thüringen« has many residential facilities in Weimar in which only matriculated students are permitted to live. The Student Housing office will be happy to help you find a suitable accommodation. The rents are all-inclusive—that is, they include all utilities, such as water, electricity, and heating. The rents range from 103 to 294 Euro. Most of the dorms are furnished (with a bed, desk, chair, wardrobe and shelving). There is a common kitchen with a shared stove and refrigerator. Not provided are kitchen appliances, flatware, pots and pans, dishes, and bedding. All of the rent prices are based on a minimum rental period of six months. The rents may be higher for shorter periods.

You should submit your application for a dormitory room as soon as you receive your letter of acceptance to the university, as the rooms are granted on a first-come first-served basis. You can apply online to »Studierendenwerk Thüringen« in Weimar.

Friday 9 a.m. – 11 a.m.

Private living quarters

If you do not want to live in a student dormitory, you can either rent a room in a shared flat or rent a flat of your own. Room prices range from 150 to 450 Euro. Inexpensive one room flats are available for as little as 350 Euro. It is advisable to plan a few days in Weimar for the search for suitable accommodation. Many rentals become available at the end of the semesters. This is a good opportunity to find accommodation quickly and at a reasonable price.

The first stop when looking for a room is the university online message board. Here, students can post their advertisements for rooms directly and free of charge.

In Germany kitchens in flats are generally unfurnished. When renting a flat, always check to see if it includes an equipped kitchen.

Please remember that utilities (e.g. heating and water) and other costs are charged in addition to the base rent. These additional costs are usually charged at a fixed rate, which can change depending on annual consumption, and which may result in retroactive payments and price rises.

Electricity is supplied by the power company of your choice and must be paid in addition to the rent, utilities, and other costs.

Servicezentrum für Computersysteme und Computerkommunikation (SCC)

The computer centre (SCC) offers you important communications and media services. Matriculated students are allowed to use the university's IT infrastructure, a university-wide network with Wi-Fi access points, central storage and printing systems. You will be issued a personal user name. You will get a free e-mail address in the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar domain and storage space for personal files on the central storage systems, as well as additional space for projects, upon request. PC pools for general use are located at Steubenstraße 6 and Bauhausstraße 15.

In addition, you'll have access to the network from the student dormitories. All information related to your studies will be sent to the e-mail address that you received from the university. To be sure not to miss out on any important information, you should check your messages daily or set up a forwarding address.

Semester calendar

Semester duration: In Germany, the academic year is divided into two semesters. The winter semester (WiSe) at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar always begins on 1 October and ends on 31 March. It is followed by the summer semester (SoSe), which begins on 1 April and ends on 30 September.

Vorlesungszeit (academic period): The »Vorlesungszeit« is the phase of the semester when students are required to be present and when instruction takes place. It generally lasts 15 weeks.

Vorlesungsfreie Zeit (semester break): The »vorlesungsfreie Zeit« at the end of the academic phase of the semester, informally known as »vacation«, is a time when no classes takes place. During these weeks, you take your tests and exams, write papers, and complete internships. It is also a time to recover, of course.

Prüfungszeitraum (examination period):

In February and July, following the »Prüfungszeitraum«, your examinations will take place.

Rückmeldezeitraum (re-registration period): January/February and June/August is the period when you pay your semester fee and register for the coming semester. You'll find the »Rückmeldefrist« (re-registration deadline) and semester fee on the web.

You'll find the re-registration deadline and semester fee on the web.

Degrees at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar

The study regulations govern the organization, extent, content and sequence of the degree programme.

You can find an overview at:

Bachelor: The Bachelor is a professionally qualifying university degree awarded following six to eight semesters of regular study. A Bachelor's thesis is required for successful completion of the degree. The Bachelor's degree enables entry into a career or continuation of studies in a Master's programme.

Master: The Master is a professionally qualifying university degree that you can earn at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar after two to four semesters of regular study. It can either be a deeper study of the discipline studied in the

The transcript of records (performance report) documents student performance over the course of studies.

The diploma supplement is an additional document to the degree certificate describing the degree programme, assessing the quality and content of student performance during the course of study.

In the »Praxissemester« (practical semester), students complete the practical part of their studies outside the university – for instance, in the form of an internship at a company or school.

Bachelor's programme or extend the Bachelor's degree in a different direction. A successfully completed Master's degree is a prerequisite for admission to a university doctoral programme.

Diplom (Freie Kunst): The »Diplom« programme is divided into two phases: Study phase I usually lasts four semesters and concludes with an intermediate examination. Study phase II lasts four to six semesters and ends with a thesis and an oral exam. At the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, the Diplom degree also confers the right to enter a doctoral programme.

Staatsexamen Lehramt an Gymnasien:

The »Staatsexamen« qualifies you to work as a secondary education teacher. An examination board composed by the responsible state teachers' examination office of Thuringia administers the »Erste Staatsprüfung« (First State Exam). A practical preparatory internship (»Referendariat«) follows the »Erste Staatsprüfung« and ends with the »Zweite Staatsprüfung« (Second State Exam). Both parts of the exam comprise the »Staatsexamen« and lead to teacher qualification.

The Bauhaus-Universität Weimar also offers individual doctoral studies conferring the title of Dr. Phil and Dr. Ing (engineering). Find out more from the Bauhaus Research School:

uni-weimar.de/brs

The »Erste Staatsprüfung« also qualifies you to enter a doctoral programme.

Ph.D./doctoral degree: The Ph.D. programme involves a six-semester doctoral phase. The aim is to produce the next generation of academics through a structured course of research in the context of a graduate programme. The Ph.D. programme culminates in the submission of a doctoral dissertation, which if accepted leads to the title of Ph.D.

Types of instruction

Module: The classes you take in the course of your studies are grouped into modules which form units based on scheduling and content. They provide you with instruction in various forms – lectures, seminars, projects, and design projects. There are core modules, which you are required to take, and mandatory electives which you can choose from a thematically limited range, and electives, which you can choose freely from the modules on offer in your course of study or those on offer from a different faculty. A module generally lasts for a semester and ends with a test in the form of a final exam or paper.

It is important to take part in the first course of the semester to get all important information about it.

Vorlesung (lecture): »Vorlesung« are presentations in which the instructor (e.g. a professor) conveys fundamentals and factual knowledge pertaining to a specific topic.

Übung (tutorial): The purpose of a »Übung« is to practise and deepen understanding of the material covered in lectures.

Tutorium: A tutorium is a special form of the tutorial in which upper-level students – tutors – help you to grasp tutorial exercises.

Seminar: Seminars offer the opportunity for in-depth independent study of specific topics under the guidance of an instructor and culminate with the presentation of your results, usually in the form of an oral presentation. The presentation is followed by a discussion offering the opportunity for reflection and constructive criticism.

The »Studienplan« (curriculum) is a clear overview of all of the semesters required for a course of study, including all possible core and required elective modules.

The course catalogue on the BISON portal provides information on all of the classes offered in the current semester.

Course catalogue >

The »Modulkatalog« (module catalogue) is a compendium of the module descriptions for the respective course of study. The module description contains information as to the content, qualification goals, instructional formats, ECTS points, and duration of the module.

All teaching staff are referred to as »Dozentin« or »Dozent« (professors, academic assistants, and instructors).

Kolloquium (colloquium): A »Kolloquium« is an academic conversation about a specific topic.

Conferences and some tests also take the form of a »Kolloquium«.

Workshop: A workshop is a moderated class in which participants discuss certain topics, solve problems, develop strategies and learn from each other.

Projekt (project): »Projekte« are blocks of instruction in which you deal with a specific topic, become aware of unresolved problems, and work independently to develop new approaches.

You'll find detailed information on the »Projektbörse« (Project Auction) and grading for individual classes in the Faculty of Art and Design at: uni-weimar.de > Gestaltung >

At the beginning of every semester, a so-called »Projektbörse« (Project Auction) or »Modulbörse« (Module Auction) is held in which instructors present their projects.

Students can get an overview and decide which courses they want to sign up for. The enrolment in projects, »Fach- and Werkmodule« as well as scientific/academic modules will take place online via the Bison portal.

After the presentation of the possible »Entwürfe« for your semester, you can select three scheduling options for the upcoming semester. You will find out by e-mail which one has been granted.

Entwurf (draft): In a »Entwurf«, you will devote yourself to the architectural development of a structure or building subject to certain conditions. You will document the result – the design – in the form of drawings and models, sometimes accompanied by text.

Fachkurs (studio course): The »Fachkurs« is a basic introduction to a workshop of your choice under the leadership of a master craftsman who enables you to implement ideas and concepts from your projects and courses in a practical environment.

Werkstattkurs (workshop introduction):

»Werkstattkurse« teach you the techniques and methods of a workshop and are designed to help you implement your artistic and design ideas in a range of media and materials. »Werkstattkurse« are therefore often oriented on projects.

Exkursion (excursion): On »Exkursionen«, you'll visit exhibits and museums, tour companies or construction sites, or participate in field studies.

Grading

Leistungsnachweise (performance report):

»Leistungsnachweise« document your performance on tests throughout your studies and contain at least one mark. In addition, you will receive credit points (CP)–or, ECTS points – which you will collect up until your graduation. Your grade statistics are listed in the BISON study portal.

CP or ECTS: Credit points are a measure of your workload, which you receive upon successful completion of a module. The European Credit Transfer and Accumulation System (ECTS) is designed to ensure that your performance is comparable to that of other students in the European University Region and are transferrable to other universities.

Workload: One ECTS point corresponds to an average workload of 30 hours. You are expected to accumulate a total of 30 ECTS points a semester. For a Bachelor's degree, 180 ECTS points (six-semester Bachelor) to 240 ECTS points (eight-semester Bachelor); for a Master, »Semesterwochenstunden« (also known by their German acronym »SWS«) list the number of hours per week planned for in-class activities over the duration of a semester.

60 ECTS points (two-semester Master) to 120 ECTS points (four-semester Master). The calculated workload includes not only the time spent in class during the instructional period during the semester but also preparation and review of work completed in class (self-study) and exams.

Exams

The »Prüfungsordnung« specifies conditions for exams and includes rules such as admission requirements, examination dates, registration deadlines, and the format of exams. A list of points of contact can be found here:

uni-weimar.de >
Universität >
Studies >
Campus.Office >
Academic Regulations >

Exams take place at the end of the instructional period of the semester – in February for the winter semester and July for the summer semester.

Depending on how a module is designed, you will have to complete different tasks to complete it. To pass a module exam, you must receive a mark of at least »ausreichend« (4.0). If a module consists of several tests, you must receive a mark of at least »ausreichend« (4.0) on all of them.

Registration for exams: Generally, you are automatically registered for an exam 14 days from the start of the corresponding class. It is possible to withdraw. Deadlines for withdrawal

Students with a disability or chronic illness who are unable to sit for conventional exams complete them in an alternative format. Apply for an alternative exam format by submitting a request for disadvantage compensation (page 63).

The examination board is a board comprised of professors, staff, and students of the university charged with ensuring compliance with the provisions of the examination rules (e.g. admission to exams, recognition of performance reports).

vary and are regulated by the examination rules for your course of study.

What to do in case of illness: In case of illness, you must submit a doctor's note (possible from an official doctor) which explicitly specifies inability to sit for an exam. The note must be submitted immediately, no later than 3 days after the exam. If the reason for the inability is recognised, the exam is considered excused.

Failure of an exam: A module exam (or sub-exam) graded with the mark of »fail« (5.0) constitutes failure. If a module consists of several sub-exams, only the failed exam must be repeated. Unexcused absence from an exam results in failure. The respective examination regulations provide more details.

Re-taking an exam: You can re-take an exam at the next test date (usually the end of the subsequent semester). Your registration for the exam remains valid, and you do not have to re-register for the next test date.

Second re-taking of an exam: In justified cases, an exam may be retaken pending approval from the examination board. You must apply to the examination board for another examination date in writing by the deadline specified in the examination rules of your course of study.

For further information please make an appointment at the »Allgemeine Studienberatung« (page 66).

If the exam is failed in the second re-take, the failure is considered final. This generally results in de-registration. You can then no longer continue your studies in this degree programme.

Leave of absence, change of degree program, part-time study, Long-term study fee

»Studierendenbüro« of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar can help you with questions related to leaves of absence, a change of major/transfer to another university, part-time study, or fees for long-stay students (page 61).

Leave of absence: You can apply for a leave of absence for a valid reason. Some examples for when a leave of absence is justified:

- > Illness
- > Maternity and parental leave
- > Voluntary national service
- > Study-related foreign travel
- > Administrative duties
- > Completion of an internship

The leave of absence is for a single semester. Generally two leaves of absence are permitted in a degree programme. Exceptions are made for chronic illness, maternity and parental leave.

Change of degree programme: If you want to change your degree programme at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, it is not necessary to reapply online. Simply submit the application form and performance reports you have collected so far to the »Studierendenbüro«. The responsible examination board will decide how you are placed in the new degree programme. The examination board may accept you subject to certain academic conditions. You can find out who is responsible for the specific examination board on the faculty webpage.

If you are an international student, be aware that changing your course of study may result in the loss of your student visa. You should therefore be sure to contact the »Bürgerbüro der Stadt Weimar« (»Ausländerbehörde«) before doing so (page 17).

Part-time studies: You can complete your studies part-time in certain degree programmes at

For some degree programmes, the artistic aptitude test or aptitude assessment procedure must be taken prior to a change.

In addition to your studies, you may also register as an auditor or »Gaststudent« (guest student) at a different university, where you can attend classes in another field and even take tests.

the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar. To do so, you must submit a written request approved by the responsible examination board. A semester of part-time study counts as a half-semester. The study regulations specify whether your desired course of study is suitable for part-time study.

The standard duration of a course of study refers to the number of semesters scheduled for the completion a degree programme. You can find detailed information at:

University >
Studies >
Campus.Office >

Langzeitstudiengebühren (long-term study fees): If you exceed the »Regelstudienzeit« (standard duration) of your programme by more than four semesters you are required to pay 500 Euro per semester, in addition to your semester fee. Liability for the fee is based not on your programme semester but on your total semesters at university. All of the semesters you may have spent at other German universities are included in the calculation. Please direct any questions to the »Studierendenbüro«.

Studying with disability

If you have a study-relevant sensory or motor impairment, a chronic-somatic or a mental illness, the »Beauftragte für chronisch kranke und behinderte Studierende« (representative for chronically ill and disabled students) of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar advises – even before starting your studies – for all questions about studying with disabilities.

The focus of the consultation is above all the application for individual compensation for disadvantages (»Nachteilsausgleich«) for study and examinations, internships, excursions, leave of absence or required assistance. The advice is confidential and solution-oriented – in the sense of a self-determined study.

Glossary

Audimax: Audimax is a short form of Auditorium Maximumum. It is the largest auditorium at the university. At the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, the Audimax is in the University Library building at Steubenstraße 6.

Bauhaus.Module: In Bauhaus.Module all students are invited to get to know new contents and methods, to discuss current social and scientific questions and to study together across disciplines.

Blockveranstaltung (Block classes): Instead of taking place in a weekly rhythm, seminars and lectures given in block format are offered in one or more blocks – for instance, in a compact form over the course of a weekend or a single week.
