GUIDE TO WEIMAR

FOR INTERNATIONAL DOCTORAL CANDIDATES,
GUEST RESEARCHERS/ARTISTS
1 INTRODUCTION

1.1 WELCOME

The Bauhaus-Universität Weimar is an international research university that is committed to the idea of the Bauhaus and therefore has a traditionally international orientation. As the “International University 2011”, we endeavour to provide a sound basis for our international scholars. Its aspiration is to combine the arts with science and technology which makes our institution unlike any other in Germany.

The experimental character of interdisciplinary teaching and research fundamentally shapes the University’s profile. This is particularly reflected in our multi-facetted focal areas of research: “Digital Engineering”, “Media and Culture”, “City, Architecture and Nature”, “Materials and Structures” and “Arts, Design and Media Arts”.

In the spirit of Germany’s great poet, natural scientist, art critic, lawyer and stateman Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, – I welcome you and wish you an inspiring research stay in Weimar. I hope this guide will help you find your bearings and get you off to a good start at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar.

Prof. Dr. – Ing. Karl Beucke,
President of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar

Doch Forschung strebt und ringt, ermüdend nie,
Nach dem Gesetz, dem Grund, Warum und Wie.
Johann Wolfgang von Goethe
1.2 HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

This guide is aimed primarily at international doctoral candidates, guest researchers and artists arriving in Weimar from around the world. To help you get started with your new phase we have compiled practical and comprehensive information in this guide. We hope it will aid you in organising your stay not only when you arrive in Weimar (see chapter 4) but also help you coordinate and establish important connections prior to your arrival in Germany (see chapter 2).

This document also contains checklists to help you complete fundamental administrative tasks quickly and independently.

We have outlined several processes and steps, which we recommend you follow.

We hope this guide will provide you with useful information for your stay in Weimar. For further assistance, please contact the Bauhaus Research School or the International Office.

2 DOCTORAL AND RESEARCH STUDIES IN WEIMAR

2.1 DOCTORAL CANDIDATES IN WEIMAR

There are two ways to earn a PhD, through a traditional individual doctoral study or through one of the structured doctoral programmes. (Please refer to our website for detailed information about current structured doctoral programmes)

Individual doctoral studies vs. doctoral studies within a structured doctoral programme: What are the differences?

Doctoral candidates who choose to pursue individual doctoral studies are required to identify a supervisor at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, who is willing to guide and supervise the research for the duration of the doctoral studies. This system offers a lot of flexibility as there is no compulsory attendance, deadlines or curriculum, but requires a great deal of dedication from the candidate. Depending on the organisation and structure of the doctoral project, the average length of this kind of PhD may take between four and six years.

Structured doctoral programmes, otherwise known as research study groups or research schools (Graduiertenkollegs, Promotionskollegs or international doctoral programmes), are additional models of doctoral study at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar. Structured doctoral programmes are mostly internationally-oriented, conducted mainly in English. Candidates in such programmes are not only required to work individually but also in wider research projects. Furthermore, structured graduate courses and the training of transferable skills are a vital part of these programmes. Depending on the
The fundamental requirement for every doctoral candidate is the acceptance letter from your future doctoral supervisor and/or the confirmation of admission as a doctoral candidate to the appropriate faculty. These two documents are particularly important as they form the basis of the binding confirmation that both your supervisor and the faculty from which you will ultimately receive your doctorate are prepared to support your doctoral work until its completion.

Regardless of the type of PhD programme you aim to pursue, there are different ways to finance your stay in Weimar:

Employment at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar

If you are employed as a research associate at the university, you receive a fixed-term contract from the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar (employer) and work at the respective institute of your supervising professor or research group. If you pursue an individual doctoral study, your work contract will generally include teaching duties to be completed alongside your dissertation work.

Scholarship or private funding

You will find further information on scholarships and living expenses in Weimar in this guide (see section 3.4). The Bauhaus Research School may support you with certain doctoral study grants and provide you with consultation on various scholarships offered at the university. We recommend visiting our website for more details and guidelines.
2.2 GUEST RESEARCHERS AND ARTISTS IN WEIMAR

The Bauhaus-Universität Weimar also invites visiting scholars to conduct research or work on an artistic project during a long or short-term stay at the university. As a visiting scholar, you will either work individually with a supervising professor, or join a research study group.

PLEASE NOTE

Regardless of the kind of project or status guest researchers or artists pursue, an agreement with a professor or institute of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar is indispensable.

Your status will depend on your financing model and whether you are enrolled as a student:

_ Scholarships and private funding
  - If you are enrolled at your home university, you can enrol as a guest student at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar. You are then assigned the status of a student guest researcher or artist.
  - Scholars who are not enrolled at their home university are entitled to use certain university services but cannot be enrolled as students. At the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, your status is that of a free guest researcher or artist.

_Scholarships for guest researchers and artists are offered by several German funding institutions. For further information on scholarships and living expenses in Weimar, see section 3.4. For general information and links, please refer to the web portal Research in Germany._

_ Employment at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar
  - If you have an employment contract with the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, your enrolment status at your home university has no relevance. At our university, you are assigned the status of an employed guest researcher or artist._
3 BEFORE YOU ARRIVE

3.1 INVITATION OR ACCEPTANCE LETTER

Depending on the type of doctoral study you intend to pursue – individual doctoral study or a structural doctoral programme (see chapter 2) – you will be required to complete different steps. Our website will inform you about the different structural programmes and research projects offered at the faculties of Architecture, Civil Engineering, Art and Design and Media at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar.

The first step is to obtain information as to whether you fulfil the requirements for admission to doctoral study at the the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar. (Please read our Doctoral Study Regulations (Promotionsordnung)).

Subsequently you need to find a suitable professor at the university to supervise your research project. After you have agreed upon the framework and conditions of your research project, (see checklist A for doctoral candidates), you will receive an acceptance letter from your professor.

First you need to contact the coordinator of the structured doctoral programme you wish to join, inquire about the specific application procedure, and apply for a position by the given deadline. Once you have been accepted, you will receive an official acceptance letter from the responsible faculty (checklist A for doctoral candidates).
The agreement can be defined more precisely concerning:
- the rights and duties of the doctoral candidate
- the rights and duties of the supervisor
- a schedule and timetable for the completion of your doctoral project

As a guest researcher or artist, you can refer to our website, which serves as a starting point to help you find a suitable project and establish contact with a professor, research or artistic project. You will receive an official invitation letter, if your prospective supervising professor or institution approves your proposed research or artistic project. It is vitally important that you agree upon the status you will hold in Weimar with your professor or faculty. Please refer to section 2.2 and checklist A to learn more about the differences between students, free or employed guest researchers and artists.

An invitation or acceptance letter is the key element of your application. We advise you to review the specific admission procedures of the doctoral studies/research project by contacting your supervising professor/programme coordinator at an early stage. It is important to pay attention to the enrolment or admission deadlines. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to e-mail the International Office or the Bauhaus Research School.
The doctoral candidate admissions board of your faculty will decide if your qualifications fulfil the requirements for admission. The conditions for admission are laid down in your faculty’s doctoral examination regulations. In some cases, you may have to complete preparatory training or additional examinations before starting your doctoral studies.

Once you have been accepted by your faculty, the International Office will issue you your official acceptance letter (Zulassung) for university registration. This letter is valid for one year and can be extended for an additional year if necessary. You must present this letter in Weimar at the time of enrolment (Immatrikulation).

3.2 ADMISSION TO THE UNIVERSITY

Once you have obtained the acceptance letter from your supervising professor, you need to formally apply for admission at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar.

First you apply online and submit the requested documents (see checklist A) to the International Office. Our staff will check if your qualifications are recognised by the Central Federal Agency for Foreign Education by using the anabin certificate recognition database (page only available in German) and will calculate the German equivalent of your grades. Then your application will be forwarded to the faculty.
3.3 APPLYING FOR A VISA

If you are planning to pursue research or work on an artistic project at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, one of your first steps should be to look into the entrance (visa) requirements for traveling to Germany which apply to your personal situation. Generally speaking, every international doctoral candidate or guest researcher/artist requires a visa to enter and stay in Germany. The type of visa required, however, will depend on your country of origin and the duration of your stay.

Citizens from the EU, EEA or Switzerland
Candidates from the European Union (EU), European Economic Area and Switzerland do not need to apply for an entry visa. Your national identity card or passport is sufficient to enter Germany.

Citizens from non-European countries
If you come from a non-European country, for which an entry visa required in Germany, (please check the following list) you need to apply for a visa at the German embassy or German consulate in your home country. It is important that you begin the application process as soon as possible (at least three months in advance) and apply for the correct visa (see below) before travelling to Germany. The entry visa allows you to enter Germany and is valid for three months. Candidates, who do not need an entry visa, can apply for a residence permit once they have arrived in Germany (see section 4.5).

Short-term stay
If you intend to stay three months or less, you may enter Germany with a Schengen/Tourist visa obtained at the German embassy or consulate in your home country. This visa entitles you to stay but not to work in Germany. If you apply for this visa, you usually have to submit an official invitation, proof of sufficient funds for your living expenses for the length of your stay, and proof of health insurance. However we strongly advise you not to enter Germany with a Schengen or tourist visa if you intend to stay longer than three months. Because this visa cannot be converted into another type of visa or in a residence permit, you will be obliged to leave Germany after three months.

Long-term stay
If you intend to stay longer than three months in Germany, you must apply for a temporary residence permit (see section 3.6).
The most common kinds of visas according to the Aufenthaltsgesetz (German Residence Act) are:

- Student visa (§ 16):
  e.g. for doctoral students (with or without scholarship funding) who want to obtain a doctoral title in Germany or guest researchers and artists. They might receive a scholarship for working within a research project or an employment contract with the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar.

- Work visa (§ 18):
  e.g. for academics who plan to work in a research or art project (remuneration might be salary or scholarship) and for doctoral candidates with an employment contract who are certain they will finish their doctoral degree successfully within the duration of the contract.

- Research visa (§ 20):
  for researchers/artists who have a Forschervereinbarung (research agreement) with the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar, signed by their professor and the Personnel Department. The research visa (§20) has some important advantages over other kinds of visas:
  - It is issued directly (without the embassy consulting the Immigration Office in Weimar) which speeds up the visa application process.
  - Accompanying spouses do not have to prove German language proficiency and are not subject to restrictions for working in Germany.
  - Research visa holders have freedom of movement for three months within the Schengen countries as long as their travels are related to their research projects.

PLEASE NOTE

For all doctoral candidates we highly recommend entering Germany with a student visa, even if you are offered an employment contract as a researcher and thus would be eligible for a work visa. The work visa and residence permit is restricted to the duration of your contract and cannot be prolonged or converted into a student visa/residence permit. If your contract ends before you finish your doctoral studies, you will have to return to your home country and apply there for a student visa for the time you need to finish your degree. We have compiled a flow chart below showing what type of visa is recommended for which purpose.
We have compiled a list of documents you need to hand in when you apply for your visa at the German consulate or embassy in your home country (see checklist B). If you enter Germany with your family, you have to submit additional documents for each family member (see checklist B). If you have further questions, on this issue please contact the German embassy or consulate in your home country.

Click here for a list of countries with links to the websites of German embassies and consulates (link in German only).

For further information on visa matters, please refer to the download information on Legal Requirements for the Entry and Residence of Foreign Students, Academics and Scientist of the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD).

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

You will require several documents, which are only available or are easier to access in your home country. Please refer to checklist C to ensure that you collect all the documents that you will later need in Germany.

3.4 SCHOLARSHIPS AND FINANCES

Applying for a scholarship
There are various German funding organisations offering scholarships for international doctoral candidates and guest researchers/artists. Generally the scholarships are granted for a period of up to three years. Candidates can reapply for an extension after the first year of funding. Additionally, other scholarship providers can be found via several online scholarship databases. For general information please refer to the Research in Germany web portal. The Bauhaus-Universität Weimar also awards scholarships for further funding once you have worked on your project for some time after your arrival, as well as doctoral study completion grants.

The Bauhaus-Universität Weimar awards scholarships, which you can apply for during your stay in Weimar. There is a wide range of available scholarships, such as:

- the Thüringer Graduiertenförderung (Thuringian Post-Graduate Funding Programme)
- Equal Opportunity Scholarships for Female Artists and Designers
- Equal Opportunity Career Continuation Scholarships
- Bauhaus Scholarship for PostDocs

For further information, visit our website.

Furthermore, we offer teaching and research assistantships to international PhD and post-docs as part of the German Academic Exchange Service’s (DAAD) scholarship and support programme STIBET. Information about STIBET assistantships and the admission process can be found here.

Funding towards the end of your doctoral degree
You can also apply for a range of scholarships which can help advance the completion of your doctoral degree. Candidates are permitted to apply for different scholarships simultaneously. Depending on the available funds, there are also special scholarships for women or international doctoral candidates.

For more information, please visit our website.
The application deadline for the scholarships awarded by the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar is on 15 December each year.

PLEASE NOTE

According to statistics provided by the German Studentenwerk (2015), students in Germany pay an average of 864 euros per month to cover all their expenses. The cost of accommodation accounts for the largest expenditure for students – all additional expenses depend on one’s lifestyle. The cost of living in Weimar is lower in comparison to German standards. For your residence permit you have to prove that you have approximately 700 euros at your disposal each month.

- Food............................................ 150 euros
- Rent............................................ 285 euros
- Health insurance............................ 80 euros
- Clothing........................................ 50 euros
- Miscellaneous.............................. 135 euros

Average monthly living expenses 700 euros

PLEASE NOTE

The Studentenwerk Thüringen offers inexpensive meals at the university cafeterias and accommodation (see section 3.5) especially for students. Museums and movie theatres offer student discounts. At the INFOtake you can receive useful information. Researchers, who are accompanied by their family to Germany, can apply for a child ID card, which allows children (up to the age of 6 years) to eat lunch for free in the dining halls.
3.5 FINDING ACCOMMODATION

Weimar is a small city and – due to the increasing number of students – the housing market has become very limited. We strongly recommend to start looking for a suitable accommodation as soon as possible.

Below, you will find useful addresses and links for short-term and long-term accommodation. Another useful tool in the search for accommodation is the university’s online bulletin board called Piazza which provides space for people offering or looking for various items and services, including inexpensive apartments offered by private households.

The Studentenwohnheime (student halls of residence) in Weimar are not maintained by the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar but by the Studentenwerk Thüringen (Thuringia Student Services). Due to high demand you should apply for a room as soon as possible. The online application can be found here.

The Studentenwerk Thüringen offers furnished rooms for students in various Studentenwohnheime throughout Weimar. The farther away you live from the centre of town, the less expensive the rental prices are (between 150 and 300 euros per month). You can find a list of all Studentenwohnheime and further information in the list below.

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

Bear in mind that simply submitting your application for a room in the Studentenwohnheim is no guarantee that you will receive a room. The applications are processed in the order they are received until all the rooms have been allocated. Therefore, the sooner you send in your application, the better your chances of receiving a room. If you applied in time, you will receive a room offer (in German) via e-mail. You need to confirm the offer within 10 days. You are required to sign the tenancy agreement in person in Weimar and present your confirmation of enrolment.
If you come to Weimar with your spouse and/or children, we strongly advise you to independently search on the private housing market for suitable accommodation:

- Weimarer Wohnstätte
- Immoscout 24

The university has a few furnished 2- and 3-room apartments available in the so-called IBZ. The rental prices range from 394 euros/month for a 2-room apartment to 693 euros/month for a 3-room apartment. For more information, please contact Susanne Wille (susanne.wille@uni-weimar.de).

Rent

Monthly rent will be withdrawn from your bank account, usually on the 3rd working day of the month (see rental contract).

Deposit

After signing the contract, you are required to transfer a deposit of 200 to 300 euros to the Studentenwerk, which will be refunded after you move out (but only if your room is clean and undamaged).

Cancellation

You must cancel your rental contract no later than six weeks before the semester ends. You can obtain a sample cancellation from the International Office. Alternatively, if you would like to move out of your room earlier, you can find a new tenant yourself.

Contacts in the student halls

You can find a list of the respective student residence tutors (students assigned to help you with residence matters) here.

Realtor
A realtor can help you find an appropriate flat. Realtors, however, usually charge a provision for their services (one to two times the monthly rental price).
What is a Wohngemeinschaft (WG)?
In WGs (flat shares), you live together with other students in one flat. You have your own room, while sharing the kitchen, living room and bathroom. Living in flat shares is a great opportunity to get to know German students and Weimar’s student scene. It is convivial and you will benefit from the help and advice from your flat mates.

Rental contract
Contains requirements concerning renovations, permitted pets etc.; a flat share can have one principle tenant who controls all rental payments, or every flatmate is his/her own principle tenant responsible for their share of the rental payment. You probably have to provide information concerning your financial situation before signing the contract.

Cancellation
If you wish to cancel your contract, you must give your notice three months in advance or find a new tenant yourself.
3.6 ORGANISING HEALTH INSURANCE

Health insurance (Krankenversicherung) is mandatory for every resident in Germany. International health insurance is not officially accepted as a substitute for national insurance. Proper health insurance is a prerequisite for residence or work permits. In some cases, the health insurance regulations of your home country may be applicable in Germany (see Health insurance for employed academics).

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

In general there are two types of health insurance: the private health insurance (private Krankenversicherung) and the statutory health insurance (gesetzliche Krankenversicherung). In some cases, private health insurance rates might be cheaper than those offered by statutory health insurance. However, policies with lower monthly premiums often require you to pay for outpatient treatment and medicine yourself and then provide the insurance company with receipts for later reimbursement.
Health Insurance for enrolled academics

In general, enrolled doctoral students take out a private health insurance. Only students under 30 years of age and those who have been previously insured by a public provider may take out statutory health insurance policy.

There is a wide range of health insurance companies in Germany which offer various rates and insurance plans. The Deutsches Studentenwerk (German National Association for Student Affairs) has made a special agreement with the Union Versicherungsdienst to provide affordable coverage to foreign students. As a scholarship holder, you are likely to take out an insurance policy directly through your scholarship provider.

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

We strongly recommend that doctoral candidates and guest researchers/artists, who bring family members with them to Germany, apply for a statutory health insurance policy. Such policies additionally cover spouses and children free of charge. Private insurance companies, however, require policies for each family member which can end up being very expensive.

Health insurance for free guest researchers and artists

If you plan on staying in Germany for only a short time and you will neither enrol as a student nor take up employment with the university, your international health insurance might be sufficient. If you need to obtain a temporary residence permit in Weimar, your health insurance provider at home must confirm in writing that your coverage extends to Germany. This will be assessed by the Immigration Office (Ausländerbehörde) in Weimar. If your coverage is deemed insufficient, you will be required to purchase an additional policy in Germany. The same applies to all family members travelling with you.

For longer periods of stay, which require you to become a temporary resident of Germany, you will have to have health insurance cover from an insurance provider licensed in Germany. Depending on your age and purpose of stay, you may take out a statutory or private insurance policy.
Health insurance for employed academics

Employed doctoral candidates and guest researcher/artists can either be insured under a statutory or private health insurance policy. If a social security agreement (Sozialversicherungsabkommen) exists between Germany and your home country, the health insurance regulation of your home policy may also apply in Germany. Your health insurance provider in your home country will confirm this for you by issuing an A 1 (formerly the E101) form. On the basis of this form, you are not required to take out a German health insurance policy as your national coverage will continue during your stay in Germany.

As an employed person, you will be required to take out German health insurance if you do not possess the A1 form. Your level of income will then determine whether you must obtain private or statutory health insurance.

Statutory health insurance

As an employee with a yearly gross income of up to 54,900 EUR/year (upper income limit for 2014) you are automatically eligible for coverage under statutory health insurance. The general statutory health insurance rate is 14.6%. Generally, spouses or partners and children are covered as family members, with no need to pay contributions. After registering with your chosen health insurance provider, you will receive a chip card that you will need for all necessary doctor visits. You also need to inform the Personnel Department at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar of your chosen health insurance provider. The university will then register you with your provider as a new employee. Premiums will be directly deducted from your monthly gross salary. Both you and your employer will each pay half of the overall premium rate to your insurance provider.

Statutory health insurance covers medical and dental treatment, and entitles you to all necessary treatments provided by the doctor of your choice. You must, however, pay a portion of the expenses for medicine, bandages, remedies, glasses, and hospital stays. In the event that you become sick, you have the right to full continuation of wages for up to six weeks. After that, you receive sickness benefits from your health insurance provider. If you receive a medical certificate from your physician, you must present this to the Personnel Department within three days. The Personnel Department will then forward a copy of the certificate to your health insurance provider.
Private health insurance
If your yearly gross income exceeds 54,900 euros, as an employee, you have the freedom to choose between a statutory or private health insurance provider. The more comprehensive the private health insurance package is, the more expensive it becomes. Private patients receive personal invoices, which the patient must pay and then submitted to the insurance company for a refund.

3.7 ORGANISING FORMALITIES FOR YOUR FAMILY

Spouses of students or long-term guest researchers’ might need to provide proof of German language proficiency when applying for a visa.

PLEASE NOTE

Only specific German language courses are accepted as proof of language skills. Spouses of those academics or artists, who have signed a special research agreement (Forschervereinbarung) with the Personnel Department and thus receive a visa on the basis of §20 “Forscher” (see section 3.3), do not need to provide proof of language skills. Children under the age of 16 are generally allowed to come along.
Childcare and schools
In Weimar you have a choice of different childcare facilities, but most of them are overbooked and have long waiting lists. The Studentenwerk operates two childcare facilities, where children of members of the university have priority. Some of the staff speak English. In all cases, it is advisable to apply as soon as possible for a place for your child. The cost for childcare depends on your monthly income and is very reasonable compared to other countries.

All children living in Germany are required to attend school between the ages of 6 and 15. The first stage of school is called Grundschule (grades 1 to 4). At the end of the fourth grade, children may choose to go to one of four different secondary schools:

_ Hauptschule continues until grades 9 or 10 and leads to a general school-leaving certificate called Hauptschulabschluss

_ Realschule continues until grade 10 and culminates in an intermediate school-leaving certificate called Realschulabschluss

_ Gymnasium continues until grade 12 and leads to an advanced certificate called Abitur. This certificate is the entrance qualification for higher education.

_ Gesamtschule is a comprehensive school combining all three types of schools under one roof. Pupils are divided into groups according to their abilities.

State-run schools in Germany are free of charge. However, parents do have to pay for their child’s material and excursions. Depending on where you live in Weimar, you will be assigned to a certain state-run school. The language of instruction in these schools is German.

For English speaking families the ThIS – Thüringia International School offers a curriculum based on PYP – Primary Years Programme, MYP – Middle Years Programme and IB – International Baccalaureate programme. As a private school the ThIS charges a monthly or yearly fee.

Child benefit
Parents or legal guardians of children in Germany receive monthly child benefits called Kindergeld. The amount depends on the ages and number of children in the household, currently 188 euros for the first and second child, 194 euros for the third child and 219 euros for the fourth and each additional child. Non-German parents are eligible to apply only under certain circumstances. In general, students who hold a residence permit as per § 16 of the Residency Act are not entitled to receive child benefits. Exceptions are made for students from the EU, Switzerland, Turkey, former Yugoslavia, Morocco, Tunisia and Algeria.

Applications must be submitted online or in writing to the local family benefit office (Familienkasse). You will find useful information about Kindergeld on the website of the Bundesagentur für Arbeit (Federal Employment Agency).

Children’s allowance
Families in the low-income sector can apply for a children’s allowance (Kindergeldzuschlag) paid by the federal government as a family benefit. Depending on your assets and income, you can receive up to 140 euros per month. You can hand in your application for an additional child allowance at the family benefit office where you can also obtain the application form. Please refer to the website of the Bundesagentur für Arbeit for further information.

The same applies here, too – university students holding a residence permit as per § 16 of the Residency Act are not eligible!

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

If you are not from the EU, EEA or Switzerland, you will have to provide the family benefit office with proof of your residence title (e.g. certified copy of your passport). Please refer to the family benefit office for further information.

4 WHEN YOU ARRIVE

4.1 REGISTRATION, ENROLMENT AND EMPLOYMENT

Once you arrive in Weimar, one of your first steps is to meet your supervising professor or the coordinator of your PhD programme. Furthermore, you are required to follow the procedures to register and enrol at the university or sign your employment contract.

THOSKA

The Thuringian University and Studentenwerk Card, or thoska for short, is an ID card used by students and employees at Weimar’s higher education institutions.

Functions of the thoska:
- Identification (student, employee or guest status)
- Library card
- Debit card for dining halls, cafeterias and courses with registration fees (e.g. sport courses)
- Train, bus and regional railway ticket only for enrolled students and researchers of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar (applies in specific regions only)
- Key card to selected buildings and rooms (when activated by your faculty)

Students and employees of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar receive the thoska (first card) for a deposit of 20 euros. Visitors can obtain a guest card at the Campus Office for a deposit of 10 euros.

Please refer to the website of the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar for further information.
Academics enrolled as students of Bauhaus-Universität Weimar
The next destination for doctoral candidates and student researchers/artists (see section 2.2) who are not employed at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar (e.g. scholarship holders) is the Campus Office in order to register at the university. Here, after your application is reviewed, you will obtain your enrolment documents. With your enrolment you can apply for the thoska card for students. You will find the application form online.

⚠️ PLEASE NOTE

For enrolment, you need to pay a semester contribution which also covers the cost of a public transportation ticket. Please visit the university’s website for further information.

Free guest researchers and artists
If you are a free guest researcher/artist (see section 2.2) you must hand in the thoska form for guests (online) in order to access the IT infrastructure and become a registered member at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar. If you have any further questions regarding your stay in Weimar, please do not hesitate to contact the International Office.

Academics employed at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar
As an employed doctoral candidate or guest researcher/artist your destination will be the Personnel department. There you will receive your contract and a list of documents which you are required to submit (see checklist A). As an employee, you need to have a tax identification number (Steuer-Identifikationsnummer), which you can obtain from the German tax office (Finanzamt) (see section 4.7). You will need to provide this number to the Personnel Department at the time you begin your employment and before your first salary payment is issued. You will also need to fill in the thoska form for employees (online) at the Personnel Department in order to receive your staff thoska.
4.2 SIGNING YOUR RENTAL CONTRACT

Upon arrival please sign the rental contract as soon as possible and make several copies. You will have to present your rental contract as proof of residence when you

- open a bank account
- register in Weimar
- register at the Personnel Department
4.3 REGISTERING AT THE LOCAL RESIDENTS’ REGISTRATION OFFICE

When moving into a house or flat in Weimar, as an international guest, you (and your family) will have to register at the Immigration Office (Ausländerbehörde) within a week of entering the country.

You are required to present several documents in order to register (see checklist E for a list of documents).

At the Immigration Office you will be given a Meldebescheinigung, a certificate confirming that you have registered. You will need official proof of registration if you wish to extend your visa (see section 4.5) or to open a bank account (see section 4.4).

4.4 OPENING A GERMAN BANK ACCOUNT

It is vital to have a bank account in Germany in order to pay bills and receive your salary. Furthermore, if you are at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar as an employee or scholarship holder, the university will only deposit your salary or the scholarship funds into a German bank account.

We advise you to open a checking account called a Girokonto (current account) with a bank located in Weimar. A checking account will allow you to do the following:

- deposit and withdraw money
- transfer money to other accounts, e.g. with online banking
- make regular payments of a certain amount at a certain point in time (e.g. rent) with a standing order
- give someone permission to withdraw money from your account (direct debit authorisation). This can be particularly helpful for regular payments in varying amounts (e.g. utility bills)

You may only open a bank account in person upon your arrival. Please make sure to submit the necessary documents (see checklist F: Opening a bank account).

Another useful document would be a letter from the hosting institute confirming your status as a visiting scholar and your intent to stay for longer than three months.

When you open an account, the bank may offer you a Maestro card (debit card) or credit card. The Maestro card will allow you to pay for items at many stores without cash, to withdraw cash from many automated teller machines (in Germany and other Eurozone countries) for a fee, and to withdraw cash from your own bank at no charge.

Before issuing a credit card, the bank usually checks how long you intend to live in Germany and whether you have sufficient funds at your disposal.
4.5 EXTENDING A VISA AND APPLYING FOR A RESIDENCE PERMIT

If you intend to stay in Germany for more than three months and you are not a citizen of the EU, the EEA or Switzerland, you are required to apply for a residence permit or extend your visa at the Immigration Office (Ausländerbehörde) in the town where you reside. The residence permit is generally valid for one year and can be extended for a maximum of two more years if the candidate’s doctoral work is progressing according to plan and the candidate continues to have sufficient financial resources.

We recommend you to submit your application as soon as possible to the German Federal Foreign Office. You will have to provide some documents with your application (see checklist D).

Please contact the Foreigners’ Registration Office in Weimar for detailed information.

If your application for a residence permit is successful, you will receive an electronic residence permit (Elektronischer Aufenthaltstitel) in credit-card form, replacing the adhesive label in the ID card/passport. For further information, refer to the online brochure issued by the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (Bundesamt für Migration und Flüchtlinge).

For more information, please visit the website of the German Federal Foreign Office (Auswärtiges Amt).
4.6 EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT OR APPOINTMENT

Citizens from the EU, EEA or Switzerland
Candidates who are citizens of the European Union (EU), the European Economic Area (EEA) or Switzerland do not require a work permit except for those candidates from new EU member states. Due to transition regulations, citizens from Romania and Bulgaria need to apply for a special labour permit at the International Placement Service (ZAV).

PLEASE NOTE

The International Placement Service is the responsible authority which grants work permits and accepts residence titles. If you have any questions concerning your work permit, please refer to the website of the ZAV or contact the authority directly. On the website you can also find useful information about working in Germany.

Citizens from non-EU or EEA countries
If you want to work in Germany (e.g. as an academic employee at the university), you require a residence title, which will enable you to pursue gainful employment. You can apply for a residence permit at the Immigration Office (Ausländerbehörde) in Weimar. Your residence permit must clearly show whether gainful employment is allowed. You can only be employed if you are in possession of the appropriate permit. A residence permit for the purpose of employment provides the holder with the right to execute the type of work explicitly stated in the permit.

EXCEPTION

If you are enrolled as a student at the Bauhaus-Universität Weimar and work 120 days (8 hours per day), 240 half days (4-5 hours per day) or less per year, you do not need a work permit as a non-EU citizen.

If you have an employment contract, you are liable for social security deductions and subject to the tax regulations in accordance with the German law (see section 4.7). The salary you earn through employment at the university is usually subject to tax in Germany. The compulsory tax deductions are made directly from your gross salary (see section 4.7).
4.7 TAXATION IN GERMANY

If your research visit is based on an employment contract in Germany and will last more than six months, you will effectively be liable to taxation in Germany on your globally-earned salary and assets.

Income tax (Einkommenssteuer) is directly deducted from your salary and paid to the state by your employer. The amount of income tax deducted depends on your income, your marital or family status and your tax bracket/class.

Every paid employee is issued a tax identification number (Steuer-Identifikationsnummer), which is sent to you by post a few days after registration. This tax identification number enables you to access your electronic tax card and must be submitted to your employer.

Obtaining a tax identification number
Your tax identification number is a unique number issued to you by the tax office (Finanzamt). You need to apply for the German tax identification number at your local tax office for the purposes of taxation, government benefits and health care.

The tax number (Steuernummer) and tax identification number are used for different tax purposes. They both exist side by side and the employer requires the tax identification number.

If you do not have a tax identification number, you may:
- not be able to get government benefits you are entitled to receive

FINANZAMT

Finanzamt Weimar / Jena
Location: Leutragraben 8, 07743 Jena
Postal address: Finanzamt Jena, 07740 Jena
Phone (03641) 378 0
Fax (03641) 378 653
E-Mail: poststelle@finanzamt-jena.thueringen.de

Opening Hours
- Monday 8:00 am – 3:30 pm
- Tuesday 8:00 am – 3:30 pm
- Wednesday 8:00 am – 3:30 pm
- Thursday 8:00 am – 6:00 pm
- Friday 8:00 am – 12:00 pm
After you have registered in Weimar, the tax identification number will automatically be sent to you via post to your new residential address by the Federal Ministry of Finance (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern). However, if you do not receive a letter within three months, you can contact the Federal Ministry of Finance by filling out an online form.

Although you can work without a tax identification number, taxes will be deducted from your income at the maximum rate and you will not be able to claim this back by submitting a tax return. Therefore, we advise you to ask for the tax identification number and have the correct amount deducted from the start. It is illegal to work in gainful employment without paying income tax and the employer is legally required to deduct the appropriate amount of tax from your salary and to forward this to the tax office.

Double taxation agreements

In order to avoid a situation in which foreign employees are liable to pay tax both in their own countries and in Germany, double taxation agreements now exist between many countries. These agreements regulate in which country you have to pay tax.

For detailed information on this subject, please contact the tax office in Jena.

4.8 PENSION SCHEME
Your pension scheme protects you and your family if your ability to work is endangered, reduced or ends due to age or death. It not only pays out pensions during retirement, but also aims to sustain your ability to work. In case of a claim, the pension scheme offers:

- medical rehabilitation services
- occupational rehabilitation
- pension due to complete reduction in earning capacity
- old-age pension
- survivorship annuity

The statutory pension insurance will be taken directly from your gross salary. Half is paid by the employer and half is paid by the employee. Registration is automatically taken care of by your employer.

Reimbursement of pension premiums

If you are returning to a country that does not have a social insurance agreement with Germany, you can be reimbursed for the pension premiums which were paid in Germany. Only premiums paid by the employee can be reimbursed. After a two-year waiting period, you can apply for reimbursement with the German pension scheme fund. We recommend that you request the necessary application forms from the responsible pension office before you leave Germany. If over the course of your career you have worked in different countries and paid social and pension insurance premiums in the respective countries, you should inquire early on with the insurance carriers in these countries about your entitlement to claims.
