towards a new MATEREALITY

2

Reinventing placemaking / Revealing matter's potential on the island of Crete, Greece

Twelve days long residency for designers, artists, architects, creatives & performing artists, working across all cultural fields. Periplus Workshops offers selected creative and cultural students, graduates, and professionals from all over the world, the time and space to delve into a constantly open lab, where thinking through making, experiential access to local identity, and a deeply humanising relationship with nature may develop into a new approach to immense creativity. Gathering knowledge that may subsequently help local societies better deal with their existing and future multifaceted challenges. Powerfully reengaging them with the wealthy but frequently neglected potential of their local environment.

Where: Anogeia village (Psiloritis UNESCO Global Geopark)

Duration of residency: One 12 days period (19-30 July)
