Clemens Hornemann

Choose one of the videos.
Make a re-enactment of it, as you can and like it.
Document it in 5 or more pictures or a short phone video.

Raša Todosijević, Marinela Koželj - Was ist Kunst

Todosijević's work and his naive question "what is art" remains up-to-date more than ever. Especially in times of internet phenomena, memes, Instagram and crypto-art, this also becomes a personal question of mine. So, I did two little studies:

Studie 1: A mashup between Todosijevićs work and one of the first very controversial internet phenomena "Angry German Kid".

Video-link: https://youtu.be/ugKeWmPJW4o

Studie 2: Who defines what art is today? Probably (frighteningly?) no art historian, no artist, no curator, not even the consumer/viewer, but programmers and their algorithms. Google, Pinterest, Instagram, all these websites have their own answer about what art is. I searched for the term "Kunst" on the most popular websites in Germany and projected the search results onto myself. Alongside the images, a text to speech computer-voice is performing "Was ist Kunst" - with endless patience.

Video-link: https://youtu.be/tTO4QClT0aE